

Who We Are

Being Known seeks to help people explore the integral relationship between deep, meaningful connections with God and others--being known--and the development of healthier minds, healthier communities and ultimately, a healthier world.

As emerging discoveries about the brain and relationships affirm the liberating reality of an innerconnected creation and Creator as presented in the Bible, we will endeavor to create: books, training materials, seminars and other resources to help individuals and groups engage with the practical aspects of these concepts and integrate them into their daily lives.
